

HOW DO I CITE THAT?

NoodleTools/MLA Citation Cheat Sheet

When do I select Reference Source as the citation type?

- Select Reference Source as your citation type for any reference material no matter where it is found, including encyclopedia articles, almanac information, dictionary entries, etc, including the following:
 - Print encyclopedias, almanacs, dictionaries, etc., found in the Library
 - GVRL articles – all ebooks in the GVRL digital library are encyclopedias
 - Britannica School articles
 - Teen Health & Wellness articles
 - free Internet encyclopedias such as Encarta

When do I select Web Site as the citation type?

- Select Web Site as your citation type only for general sites on the Internet.
- Do NOT select it when you are citing a news article or encyclopedia article on the Web.

When do I select Newspaper or Magazine as the citation type?

- Select Newspaper or Newswire or Magazine as your citation type whenever you are citing any kind of news article, including those from the following types of sources:
 - print newspapers or magazines
 - the Web site of a news organization such as The New York Times, Newsweek, CBS, BBC
 - a news article reprinted on another Web site
 - a news article that you get from one of the RD subscription databases such as EBSCOhost or eLibrary